MUTUAL NONDISCLOSURE AGREEMENT

The undersigned parties have agreed as follows on this date:

That it is in the parties mutual interest to disclose certain proprietary and confidential information, trade secrets, and market strategies which are not generally known by other persons, including but not limited to inventions, product description, documentation, customer information, pricing structures, technical specifications or data, product design, packaging concept or design, and distribution channels and other similar information which may be disclosed between the undersigned, their agents or principles.

The undersigned parties agree:

1. To hold such information, trade secrets and strategies in confidence and not disclose the same to any third party or use the same for competitive purpose or advantage;
2. To agree to non-circumvention of customers and/or business relationships without prior consent through written, binding instrument amended to this agreement;
3. To use such information, trade secrets and strategies only for the purpose of evaluating proposals and projects or developing projects pursuant to a written agreement authorizing the application;
4. That this agreement does not convey any rights to reverse engineer with purpose of obtaining a working model of similar product or technology;
5. Not to publish, release, disclose or allow to be viewed or communicated in any form to any person not a party to this agreement, the information, trade secrets or strategies of either party, without the disclosing party's prior written permission; and
6. Upon termination of discussions to return all tangible representations of such information, trade secrets and strategies.

Disclosure of such information, trade secrets and strategies shall not confer any rights or interest in the same.

No representations or warranties are made concerning the accuracy, validity, feasibility or possibilities for implementation or abandonment by future actions, irrespective of provisions contained in such information, trade secrets, and strategies.

Either party may obtain injunctive relief in the event of breach by the other, in addition to actual damages and all other remedies available by law. The parties recognize that breach may cause irreparable injury and that damages will not provide an adequate remedy. Such action may be brought in the jurisdiction where such action is sought to be enjoined State courts located in Las Vegas, Nevada, USA.
